A salute to the timeless contribution

Dr Yatish Agarwal

Nearly two hundred years ago, an American statesman who became the sixth President of the United States, John Quincy Adams, had said — “If your actions inspire others to dream more, learn more, do more and become more, you are a leader.”

Proud to retell, several of the Medical Superintendents of this institution embodied the same thought. They were men who led by example, who believed in setting the highest and noblest standards in practice of medicine, who were innovative, who didn't find fault but rather worked hard to find remedies, who inspired fellow staff members to give their best, and tried to impart the ethical and moral values of truth, goodness, and compassion, and build traits of creativity, intuition, and wisdom. We take this opportunity to salute them for their timeless contribution...
